On June 12 and 13, dachshund lovers host the first Walla Walla Wiener Weekend. Owners, families, and fans can join for races, contests, vendors, and fun. Friday begins with the Downtown Walla Walla Wiener Walk at 6 p.m. at Walawála Plaza, S. 1st Ave and E. Main St. Walla Walla. Saturday's main event is at The Seleh, 3579 Clodius Rd, Waitsburg, with vendors and food starting at 10 a.m.

Starting June 5, First Friday Art Tours run from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. Ten venues—including ArtWalla, the Combine Art Collective, and Brasserie Four—offer pop-up exhibits, receptions, and chances to meet artists.

The Walla Walla Farmers Market operates every Saturday from May through October, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Over 40 vendors set up at the Farmers Market Pavilion, 106 W. Main Street. Shoppers will find fresh local produce, artisans, and enjoy live music while they shop.

July brings the 10th Annual Walla Walla Movie Crush, featuring America's most intoxicating short cinema. From July 10 to 12, the program is divided into one-hour thematic blocks. Named one of the 25 "Coolest Film Festivals in the World" by Moviemaker Magazine, the festival reviews over 2,000 short films, selected by co-founder Warren Etheredge. Shorts screen at Gesa Power House Theater and compete for top prizes judged by accomplished moviemakers.

Other summer activities include bike tours, sip-and-shop events, wine tastings, and live music. Visit Wallawalla.org, www-chamber.com, artwalla.com, and downtownww.com for up-to-date event information.

Waitsburg/Dayton band takes home 1st in Jazz at national event

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

COEUR D' ALENE — On May 30, a combined band from the Waitsburg and Dayton school bands participated at a regional "Music in the Park" event at Lake City High School in Coeur d' Alene on May 30. After the performance, the band directors, Jagelski and Gillick, took the students to the Silverwood Theme Park for fun and an awards ceremony.

Music in the Parks is a nationwide festival program where school bands and choirs perform, and are critiqued, before visiting local amusement parks, where they receive awards in three categories. The bands are judged on tempo, style, and musicianship, and first-, second-, and third-place awards are given in concert band, choir, and jazz band categories.

The Waitsburg and Dayton bands performed "Pink Panther" by Henry Mancini and "It Don't Mean a Thing" by Duke Ellington. The band earned first place in the jazz category against over 80 bands, from mostly larger districts in the northwest region.

"It was great to see the camaraderie and collaboration between the two schools, and it felt amazing to end the year on a high note. A perfect way to celebrate Elizabeth's retirement from Waitsburg High School," said Amy Gillick.

AT THE LIBERTY: "Pressure"

June 5-9 & June 12-16

DAYTON — Featuring an all-star ensemble led by Andrew Scott, Brendan Fraser, Kerry Condon, Chris Messina and Damian Lewis, "Pressure" is set during the tense 72 hours before D-Day. As the fate of the free world hangs in the balance, General Dwight D. Eisenhower and Captain James Stagg confront an impossible choice: launch the largest and most dangerous invasion in history or risk losing the war altogether. The film is directed by Anthony Maras (Hotel Mumbai), who co-wrote the script with Olivier Award-winner David Haig, based on Haig's critically lauded play, which enjoyed a hugely successful run in London's West End before going on to be performed for Her Majesty the Queen and world leaders to mark the D-Day 75th anniversary in 2019. The cast includes Brendan Fraser, Andrew Scott, and Damian Lewis. It is rated PG-13 for war violence, bloody images, some strong language, and smoking. It has a runtime of 100 minutes.

In honor of the 82nd Anniversary of D-Day, Veterans will receive a $1.00 off admission. The Liberty Theater worked hard to bring this powerful film to Dayton. "Pressure" has captivated audiences in its opening weekend.

On Rotten Tomatoes, viewers rated the movie 95%. One movie patron wrote, "Great storytelling and cast." A critic said, "It's astonishing to consider that D-Day could have failed all due to a weather forecast. 'Pressure' understands that and seriously engages with the idea of honorable people up against impossible problems."

The Summer Children's Enrichment Program (SCEP) with the free series beginning on Tuesday, June 16, at 1 p.m. with the movie "Open Season". The series runs every Tuesday and Friday at 1 p.m. and is free to attend. A small soda or water and a small popcorn will be available for only $2.00.

More information is available at libertytheater.org. Additional family summer events include a performance by Alex Zerbo on July 2 at 1:30 and the Mis-soula Children's Theater on August 3-8.

On Saturday, June 20, during All Wheels Weekend, the theater will screen a locally produced documentary, "Roll Modelz." The 12.5-minute award-winning documentary shows how the often-misunderstood lowrider culture can bring people together, especially during times of loss. The film follows the WA State Lowriders Car Club, based in Walla Walla, as it honors the memory of Mya Kay Avila. "Roll Modelz" will be shown on a loop for free between 11 and 3 p.m. Stop in, enjoy the AC, a free film, and snack on popcorn with real butter. As an added bonus, the club will park a fleet of its lowrider cars in front of the theater for the event.

Schedule change for upcoming movies: "Pressure" (2 weekends) June 5-9 & June 12-16; "Star Wars: Mandalorian & Grogu" June 19-23. The schedule is always subject to change.

WASHINGTON SECRETARY OF STATE RESPONSE TO USPS PROPOSED RULE ON BALLOT MAIL

THE TIMES

OLYMPIA — On Friday, May 29, the U.S. Postal Service released a proposed rule for handling ballot mail in federal elections in alignment with Executive Order 14399 regarding elections.

"This is an unnecessary rule and does nothing to provide security in our elections. We'll continue to evaluate and provide feedback to the USPS," Secretary of State Steve Hobbs said. "Once again, we're seeing federal overreach that threatens to undermine the rights of eligible voters and override states' authority over elections. This is clearly another attempt by the Trump administration to exercise authority they don't have. The United States Constitution is clear that the authority to determine the time, place, and manner of elections lies with the states and Congress, not the president. Even Congress's authority over elections is limited.

"I will continue to defend our state's constitutional role in administering elections."

The proposed rule will be posted for public comment on June 2, 2026, and comments are due by July 2, 2026.

The Office of the Secretary of State is committed to protecting voters' rights and said it will continue to administer free, fair, and accessible elections. Updates will be posted to the Federal Impacts on Washington State Elections web page when more information is available.

Washington's Office of the Secretary of State oversees areas within state government including managing state elections, registering corporations and charities, and governing the use of the state flag and state seal. The office operates the State Archives and the State Library, documents extraordinary stories in Washington's history through Legacy Washington, and administers the Combined Fund Drive for charitable giving by state employees and the Productivity Board state employee suggestion program. The Secretary of State oversees the state's Address Confidentiality Program to help protect survivors of crime and the Civic Engagement Program to increase governmental trust and participation for all Washingtonians.

Palouse Outdoors: A Classic J-truck Revival

By Brad Trumbo | THE TIMES

"Alright, God, how about a little help?" I muttered through clenched teeth. Sweat soaked my brow and stung my eyes. Grass poked at the back of my neck as I lay on my back, reaching up through hoses, belts, and 49 years of grease and grime. For 15 minutes, I'd struggled to hold a new mechanical fuel pump in place while the bolts refused to thread. The words had barely left my mouth when the bolt caught and threaded in with ease.

"Thank you!" I said, my left arm burning from the strain against the pump.

The rig above me was a 1977 Jeep J20, a three-quarter-ton pickup featuring an aluminum vertical-slat "razor" grille, round headlights, a roof visor extending over the windshield, a four-speed manual transmission, and an AMC 360-cubic-inch V8 engine. The "full-sized Jeep" or "J-truck" was produced from 1963 to 1987 with minimal design changes. They're an icon of American automotive history, known for their straightforward build, durability, and military service.

Like most old rigs, this one had seen a hard life – a daily driver for a pole barn business for 20 years, then a farm truck before ending up as a lawn ornament. The Facebook Marketplace ad claimed it "ran," but that was an exaggeration. It started only when fuel was poured directly into the carburetor, and the engine popped and ticked from the timing being off. Lubricant dripped from everywhere. The interior was filthy. Dry-rotted vinyl and powdered duct tape crackled on the torn bench seat, and the floor pans looked like Swiss cheese. Lichens grew on the fenders. There were bullet holes in the windshield and the passenger-side interior. It had been sitting from 2008 to 2024 because of a blown wheel bearing.

I chewed the inside of my left cheek, weighing whether to make an offer. The upcoming revival was daunting, but this rig checked every box for the next project in my lifelong obsession with J-trucks. It was the first reasonably-priced, complete J-truck that I'd perused over an 18-month period. No missing parts. The drivetrain was solid. It had a good tailgate (which is extremely rare). I couldn't resist.

A little haggling ended 23 regretful years since I sold my Army-green 1972 J2000. The daydreams of fishing, hunting, camping, and puttering around the mountains would once again become reality.

I firmly believe project vehicles need names. "Bessie" was my 1968 Ford F100. "Hulk" was my 1972 J2000. "Mabel" struck me as the name for the J20 as I looked her over. Named after Paul Maclean's indigent girlfriend in Norman Maclean's classic novel, A River Runs Through It, she was beautiful, tough, and misunderstood. Those who appreciate J-trucks value their simplicity, durability, rugged good looks, and rarity.

The repairs began just minutes after I backed her off the trailer at home. The fuel pump failed, and while troubleshooting the fuel issue, I fried the voltage regulator. That started the daisy chain of fixes, failures, and mistakes that continued over the next 12 months. Every day was a learning experience.

I'm no mechanic, but I know J-trucks and learned enough mechanics from Dad (Pop) in my youth to be more than dangerous with a set of tools. Pop was a race car driver and mechanic until he was about 30. Sadly, he died in 2022, but his mentorship enabled me to undertake this classic rig revival. Pop was a dedicated worker who valued his downtime, yet he never complained about the hours spent wrenching on our jalopies with his boys.

Haynes and Chilton repair manuals, supplemented by YouTube videos, were a godsend. The manuals are now grease-stained, dog-eared, and scribbled with notes, and I have a library of saved YouTube videos. I even made a few of my own for future reference. But divine intervention was necessary to bridge the gaps in my abilities, and I talked to God and Pop every day in the shop.

Pop's "help" wasn't always as immediate or obvious as my fuel-pump plea to God. Frustration would burn through me as I talked out a scenario, unable to envision a solution or complete a task. I'm known to get animated when things become unnecessarily difficult, and Mabel's final repair before hitting the road sticks with me.

"I've just rebuilt the entire ignition system, and there's still no spark at the points. How is that even possible?" I said aloud. Everything checked out with a multimeter. "What do you think, Pop?"

Twice, the ignition system failed after a test drive, leaving the Jeep in the shop and refusing to start. The coil failed the first time, but the second time there was no clear culprit. I replaced the ignition control module, distributor points, and condenser to cover all bases, but there was still no spark.

A small tantrum welled up, and I hurled a screwdriver across the shop, where it clanged off the sheet-metal wall and rattled to the floor, among other tools, in a cloud of choice language. Before storming out of the shop, Pop's subtle, common-sense nudge came from the back of my mind. "Just turn the key, son." Surprisingly, the engine roared to life after two revolutions.

One year to the day after buying Mabel, we set out for mountain-stream trout fishing. Her revival took 50 days and hundreds of hours of blood, sweat, and tears. I completely rebuilt or replaced nearly every system on the vehicle, updated some interior components, and made electrical repairs to the gauges and lights. Walla Walla Transmission handled the clutch, water pump, and timing chain. Most days I wore grease on my face and arms up to my elbows, got rust in my eyes, and spilled oil, antifreeze, and brake fluid. But the effort paid off the instant we drove away, the front seat packed with fishing gear.

The smell of gas and oil, the engine heat billowing into the cab, and the sense of freedom took me back more than 35 years to a sultry West Virginia summer day. The rig, a J10, was the spitting image of Mabel. My friend Richard was behind the wheel, his dark mullet spilling from under his ballcap. Mark Chesnutt, Travis Tritt, and other "prime country" heroes blared from the radio.

We drove that rig up and down the mountains and across the fields all summer, fishing, hunting vermin, chewing tobacco, singing old country music, and feeling like "men." That core memory planted the ember of an undying obsession with J-trucks. Mabel's revival has fanned the ember into a flame.

KENNEY MEDALS TWICE AT STATE

Waitsburg senior Teegan Kenney finished his high school track career medaling in two events at the WIAA 1B/2B/1A State Championships at Eisenhower High School in Yakima May 28-30.

On Friday, May 29, coach Dan Nechodom said that Kenney "jumped well this morning". "His first three attempts were a little flat, but enough to get him into the finals".

In Kenney's first jump in the triple jump finals, he jumped 40'8"; which earned him a 4th place medal.

Kenney did not make the finals in the 300-meter hurdles (he placed 10th) or the 100-meter dash (he placed 12th), but on Saturday, he made the finals in the long jump. His jump of 19' 3 3/4" was good for 7th place.

"We are proud of him making it to State in four events," said Nechodom. "His personal record in the triple jump was a pleasant way to finish out that event, and he has performed better than his seeding place in the long jump," finished Nechodom.
