67th Salmon BBQ

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — The Waitsburg Lions Club said the 67th annual Salmon BBQ brought smiles to 520 satisfied diners last weekend at the Don Thomas building. Attendance was slightly down from previous years, as the BBQ competed with popular fall events including the Apple Cup and several local weddings; however, community enthusiasm was not.

The diners enjoyed the annual community event, with the consensus that the fish and socializing were superb this year. For many returning, this year's event might be the best they've experienced.

PSE engineer Ryan Severe nationally recognized for innovation

DAYTON — The National Safety Council recognizes outstanding advances in safety through the Green Cross for Safety Awards. The awards honor community partnerships, programs, individuals, researchers and corporations that make a significant impact on safety issues through advocacy, innovation, and excellence.

On September 15, Puget Sound Energy and Principal Engineer Ryan Severe were awarded the Green Cross for Safety Innovation Award at the NSC Safety Congress and Expo held in Denver, Colorado.

As PSE's principal engineer for wind facilities, Severe created a solution for safely identifying issues in wind turbine nacelles, which house medium-voltage components. Remotely monitoring the interior of these spaces in operation is the most efficient way to diagnose potentially dangerous and damaging issues before they lead to a catastrophic failure.

Severe worked over eight years to investigate the root causes of maintenance challenges including overheating, increased repair costs, extended downtime, and inefficiencies.

Working with Sytis, a vendor from California, Severe created a bi-spectral camera system that combines standard light with thermal imaging to enable operators to remotely identify situations that could lead to dangerous system failures, including fires and arc blasts.

The system protects PSE workforce by reducing the need for climbs and providing technicians with accurate information on the detected problems before they climb.

He and his wife, Elise, attended the Green Cross for Safety Awards in Denver and was one of 9 semi-finalists in the innovation category. He said he was surprised when it was announced that he had won the award.

"For me, it was just important to be able to contribute to the safety of the industry and make it where others can come home at the end of the day," said Severe. "That's why I did it."

Since winning this award, Severe has been shortlisted for recognition by RenewableUK and will attend the Global Off-shore Wind 2025 Awards in London in October.

Columbia County Sesquicentennial Celebration October 4

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON-Columbia County is celebrating its 150th anniversary with many activities planned for Saturday, October 4.

The lead agency for the celebration is the Port of Columbia. The Port's Economic Development Coordinator, Shane Laib, said an opening day ceremony will be held at 11 a.m. in the Dayton Historic Depot courtyard at 222 East Commercial Avenue. Confirmed keynote speakers are Columbia County Commission Chair Marty Hall, Dayton Mayor Roger Trump, Town of Starbuck Mayor Zonia Dedloff, and 9th Legislative District Representative Mary Dye.

A free "Meet Your Neighbor" chuckwagon lunch, featuring authentic 1875-era fare catered by The Q Wood Fired Grill, is planned from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The menu includes tri-tip steak, ranch beans, sourdough bread, and apples from Warren Orchard.

Laib said the luncheon tickets are free but limited and are available before Thursday, October 2, at the Dayton Chronicle, Dayton Chamber, Dingle's of Dayton, Locally Nourished, Fifth & Willow, Liberty Theater, Bank of Idaho, Dayton Historic Depot, and Port of Columbia's office. Visitors from out of town can call the Port at (509) 382-2577 before October 2 to reserve tickets for the luncheon.

Watch members from Blue Mountain Artists display and create artwork at Locally Nourished, Moose Creek Café and Bakery, and the Dayton Historic Depot beginning at 10 a.m. Feel free to ask questions.

Of interest, too, is a program called Sauerkraut and Stories with Mr. Stine from 1 p.m. to 1:45 p.m. at the Boldman House Museum at 410 North First Street. A local historical reenactor will portray Mr. Stine. Dressed in period attire and full of stories from the late 1800s, he will demonstrate how to prepare and ferment fresh vegetables for use through the winter.

Laib said there will be other living history vignettes with players portraying some of the historic characters who helped shape Columbia County, at various locations throughout the day.

Feel free to wander around town or take the guided tour at noon at the Dayton Historic Depot. After visiting the depot stationmaster, Laib and Museum Director Karina Baker will lead the group on foot to the Boldman House Museum for a visit with Stephen Boldman. Boldman bought the house for his family in 1912, and it was in the Boldman family for the next 87 years.

The tour will then proceed to the historic Smith Hollow Schoolhouse, located at 113 N. Front St., to visit with the schoolmarm. Adjacent to the schoolhouse is the Dodge Quarantine Cabin, where a soldier stationed there will explain when and how it was used.

Brewmaster Jacob Weinhard will be at Hotel Hardware at 235 East Main Street, and Dayton Founder Jesse Day will be at Hotel Dayton at 270 East Main Street. The tour will continue east to the Liberty Theater for a visit with the unconventional early resident, Minnie Moe, then proceed to the Purple House at 415 East Clay Street for a visit with physician and philanthropist Dr. Marcel Pietryski. Elizabeth Forrest Day, wife of Jesse Day, will receive visitors in the Delany Room at the Dayton Memorial Library. Finally, Elisha Ping, who campaigned for the creation of Columbia County, will be at the Columbia County Courthouse.

SECRETARY OF STATE DENIES
DOJ REQUEST FOR PROTECTED
VOTER DATA

By Lane Gwinn | THE TIMES

OLYMPIA—Secretary of State Steve Hobbs received a request from the U.S. Department of Justice, dated September 8, 2025, for all fields of Washington’s voter registration list. On Tuesday, September 23, Hobbs responded that his office can only provide the publicly disclosable information permitted under state law.

Pursuant to RCWs 29A.08.710 and 29A.08.720, publicly disclosable fields are the registrant’s name, address, year of birth, and voting history. Registered voters’ data including the last four digits of a Social Security numbers, driver’s license numbers, and the full birth dates protected from public disclosure.

“As Washington state’s chief elections officer, I take my duty to protect voters and the sensitive information they entrust to the state very seriously,” said Secretary Hobbs. “While we will provide the DOJ with the voter registration data that state law already makes public, we will not compromise the privacy of Washington voters by turning over confidential information that both state and federal law prohibit us from disclosing.”

The DOJ cited sections of the National Voter Registration Act and Help America Vote Act in their request; however, neither act requires states must provide protected information.

The DOJ’s shifting explanations and public reporting indicate that the DOJ will use state voter files for a national database or to share with other agencies for unauthorized purposes. Hobbs said any unauthorized use by the DOJ could raise legal questions under the federal Privacy Act of 1974, which requires strict protections when creating or maintaining federal records systems.

“Our office is committed to transparency and accountability in elections,” Hobbs said. “But transparency does not mean putting the personal information of every Washington voter at risk. The law is clear, and my responsibility is to the voters of this state.”

The DOJ request is available at <https://tinyurl.com/nub9zc7f>, and Secretary Hobbs’ response is available at sos.wa.gov, specifically on the page at <https://tinyurl.com/ytvh27j4>.

and Henry Weinhard’s Old Fashioned Root Beer floats on the grounds at 3 p.m.

The closing ceremony will take place at 4 p.m. at the Palus Museum, located at 426 East Main Street, with the unveiling of a new mural —a gift from the Sesquicentennial Organizing Committee to the community. The mural was made possible because of a generous $18,000 Wildhorse Foundation grant and an additional $8,000 contribution from the Dayton Development Task Force, Laib said.

Columbia County became official on November 29, 1875. In honor of its 150th anniversary, the Sesquicentennial Organizing Committee will have a float in this year’s Christmas Kick-Off parade, which takes place the day after Thanksgiving.

The Sesquicentennial Organizing Committee is a whole community effort, said Laib. Representatives from Columbia County, the Fair Board, the City of Dayton, the Blue Mountain Heritage Society, the Dayton Development Task Force, the Dayton School District, the Dayton Alumni Association, the Dayton Chamber of Commerce, the Dayton Historic Depot Society, the Liberty Theater, the Dayton Chronicle, the Columbia County Rural Library District, and Boe Designs have all contributed.

To the editor,

Thank you for the images; they are a real treat, and a trip down what is now a 60-year memory lane.

Working in harvest, whether green peas or later grain, never seemed like work. It was an experience that most of the area participated in, and they were glad to.

The photojournalism ties well to another story, the railroad. In my opinion, the natural owner of the railroad should be the Northwest Grain Growers. Not for any partisan or political reason, but for the back to the future reason.

The enormous harvest equipment feeds a truck fleet, which has steadily grown to combination weights in excess of 60 tons. These trucks will destroy the County Road system, first the surface, then the bridges, then the fills, and the roadbed itself. None of the post-WWII systems were designed for rubber tired freight of this weight. For some farmers, in some areas, with some ingenuity a bank out wagon could load directly to a standard hopper car if the Northwest Grain Growers ran the railroad. One to three loads per car, simply an amazing amount of grain.

And, paradoxically, thanks to the loss provision in the property tax code, there is no money to replace these systems. It would appear that grain growing areas, in their desperate attempt to stay in business, are removing the transportation systems that allow them to be in business at all.

Again, thanks for the images. Here are a couple images of equipment I have driven by for over sixty years. Silent witnesses to changes in dryland grain farming.

Gaggle of Gagnons honored at Fall Festival

By Lane Gwinn | THE TIMES

The Waitsburg Historical Society hosted its annual Fall Festival on Sunday, September 21. Cooler weather may have kept some visitors home; those who came were hungry. The Lions Club sold more bison burgers than last year, selling out.

Before the rain began, the Historical Society honored the Gagnon Family as Pioneers of the Year. Almost the entire audience stood after family members were invited to the front of the stage.

There were plenty of places to stay out of the rain, including the Wilson-Phillips and Bruce houses. Visitors enjoyed a vintage fashion show and music courtesy of TVAMP and Kate Hockersmith.

The historical society thanked the community for its support to keep the history of Waitsburg alive and well.

Lion Club chefs Jim Wilson, Tom House, and Jake Long took on the burgers at the festival.

Vintage cars lined the street in front and on the lawn of the Bruce House Museum.

KARISSA POTTS EARNS TOP PIE BAKER HONOR

The top three pies in the Annual Laurette McCaw Pie Contest were selected by judges Paul Gregret, Barb Abbey, and Dane Henze.

Margie Gagnon Benson and her sister Kathy Gagnon Greenwell accepted the honor on behalf of the family. The family was represented by one of the largest turnouts in the festival's history

Dayton School Board hears from students

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON – The Dayton School Board met in the High School Library at 6:30 p.m. on September 17, 2025. Superintendent Jeremy Wheatley, Board Chair Jeffrey McCowen, board members Pat Davidson, Grant Griffin, and Aneesha Dieu were present. Public Works Director Ryan Paulson joined the meeting an hour late due to a power outage affecting much of the city.

As the first order of business, Wheatley swore in Jaelynn Chapman, a junior, as the student representative to the school board. The personnel report included the following hires:

- Elementary ASB Co-Advisor Jami Rushing
- Elementary ASB Co-Advisor Darby Souza
- Vocational Director 2025-2026 Jeremy Wheatley
- Annual Advisor Shannon James
- Head MS Volleyball Coach Dave Phillips
- MS Assistant Football Coach Pat Davidson
- ECEAP Coach Alyssa Laib

McKenna McCowen, representing the ASB, gave a report that included the Homecoming Week dates from October 13 to October 17, and the dance on October 18, 2025. She said events planned for the week include PJ Day, Neon Day, and School Spirit Day.

Athletic Director Sam Korslund gave the fall sports participation numbers:

- HS Football – 22
- HS Volleyball – 13
- Cheer – 9
- MS Football – 20
- MS Volleyball – 16

The physical education teachers, Ajay McNarland for secondary school and Clayton Stronge for elementary school, gave overviews of their classes and teaching philosophies.

Student Rep Chapman gave student reactions on the district's revised no-cellphone policy. Initially, most students were pretty upset about the new policy, she said. Since implementation, she said communication in classes and between people has increased. She said students are getting used to the revisions, and Chapman has yet to see a student's phone taken away.

Principal Amy Cox also confirmed in her report the lack of cellphone violations since the school year began.

The public meeting adjourned for an executive session to review a complaint against staff or programs and to discuss the qualification of an employee.

The board returned to its regular meeting and declared the complaint was resolved. Next, the board approved Wheatley as the District's Vocational Director.

The meeting adjourned at 8:59 p.m.

First annual Royal Block Party

By Lane Gwinn | THE TIMES

Waitsburg — A busy weekend in Waitsburg included an all-ages block party, the Lions Club Salmon Feed, and the Waitsburg Historical Society Fall Festival.

The first annual Royal Block Party was held in the alley behind the hotel, Ten Ton Studios, Plaza Theater, and Wolfling Coffee. There was food, music, alley bowling, and ring toss from 5 until after 9 p.m.

Wolfling Coffee opened its back door for in-progress shop tours and a chance to meet owners Caitlyn Potts and Trevor Corbin. Next door, Whisky C owners Corben Ketelsen and Tommy Long hosted food and an alley-bowling-alley. Suze Wood, owner of The Press Room, gave carnival vibes with a ring toss to win drink cards, Pott's pottery, and other fabulous prizes. Red Bird offered bouquets of flowers and shrubs to drink.

There was music by Los Amigos con Groove and Friends of the Devil on outdoor stages.

(top) Los Amigos con Groove quartet played on the Royal Block's new back deck. (left) What's an alley without a bowling ball, thanks to Corben Ketelsen we can live the dream. (center) Royal Block co-owner Joe Roberts took a moment for some aerial photography, playing paparazzi to the elusive Randy Hinchliffe. (right) Friends of the Devil brought the "Dead" to the alley on RB's new outdoor stage.

PIONEER PORTRAITS

Fifteen Years Ago

Bob Chalfant has big shoes to fill. For almost three decades, Gary Lentz worked as the ranger in charge of Lewis and Clark Trail State Park. For years Lentz maintained the facilities while providing interpretive programs, extolling his extensive knowledge of the history and biology of the region. But at the end of June, the Dixie man retired from his post. Now Chalfant, a 31-year veteran of the parks system, has been assigned to the task. "My goal is to enhance what Gary has done here," Chalfant said. "He's left shoes that are impossible to fill, but I hope to talk him into coming back to continue sharing his knowledge and experience here at the park."
