First Girl Wrestler for the Cardinals looks forward to next year

By Lane Gwinn | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — This year, the Cardinals' Wrestling welcomed its first girl competitor to the team. It was a first for Karissa Potts, a junior who only took up the sport this year.

"When I started wrestling, I knew absolutely nothing. I wasn't perfect—still not—but in just a few months, I've grown so much and learned more than I ever expected," said Potts. "Wrestling pushes you physically and mentally, and yeah, it's tough, but it's also addicting. Even on the hardest days, it's fun, and I can't wait to come back next year."

Coach Lash LaRue described Potts as a pleasure to work with and hopes other girls will join the team next year. The Associated Press reported that girls wrestling is the fastest growing sport in the U.S. La Rue said there were as many girls as boys ornaments this season.

During meets, Potts had the support of her team as they watched and cheered her on. Her first match was against a seasoned senior, which proved challenging but did not deter her.

"The best part has been my team. Wrestling is an individual sport, but you still rely on your teammates to push you, support you, and help you grow. No one lets you feel like you can't do something," said Potts.

She encouraged other students, "If you're a girl thinking about wrestling, do it. You're much stronger than you think, and this sport will prove it. It builds confidence, resilience, and friendships that last. Wrestling isn't just about winning matches—it's about proving to yourself that you can handle anything; it's 90% mental."

Dayton Council approve land deal for waste management

Council chooses Glenn Hagfeldt to fill Teeny McMunn's vacant seat

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON — Mayor Roger Trump called the Dayton City Council to order at 6 p.m. on February 11, 2025. Trump, council members James Su'euga, Joann Patras, Michael Smith, Laura Aukerman, Kyle Anderson, and Shannon McMillen were present.

During the public comment period, Dayton resident Theresa Eier spoke about the recall petition she intends to file against Columbia County Sheriff Helm. Eier also discussed her litigation against Columbia County for "withholding records and a lack of transparency." Eier said there were 600 documents withheld for 600 days, with intent. She said her motivation was not financial but to bring transparency and accountability to the Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Joe Helm reported 522 law enforcement incidents in January, of which 373 occurred within the city. In addition, there were 79 traffic stops, including 40 in the city. He acknowledged the Bluewood Ski Patrol for their work, including helping the Sheriff's Department to safely locate a lost skier the previous weekend.

After approving the consent agenda, the council began candidate interviews for the council's vacant position #3 seat. The three candidates were Dave Harvey, Glenn Hagfeldt, and Katherine Roughton.

The city council went into its first executive session to evaluate the candidates and selected Glenn Hagfeldt after returning to the regular meeting.

The council approved resolution 1559, which authorized the mayor to sign the Public Works Board Pre-Construction Funding Agreement for a 5-year term for the new wastewater treatment project.

The council passed resolution 1560 to give the mayor authority to contract Anderson Perry & Associates for assistance with the South 4th Street overlay project.

Resolution 1561 was approved, amending the 2018 Dayton personnel policies and procedures and the credit and purchase card policy.

Resolution 1562 authorized the mayor to declare support and adopt the Columbia Hazard Mitigation Plan.

The council went into a second executive session to discuss a potential real estate acquisition for the wastewater treatment project.

The council approved Resolution 1563 after returning from the executive session. The resolution authorizes the city to enter into a purchase agreement with landowner Marjory L. Krueger for a portion of a parcel south of Highway 12. The city will use the land for the new wastewater treatment plant and approved the fair market value of $1,120,00.

The council reviewed the liquor license for Dayton Gas, previously PFI, and renewed it without objection.

Public Works Director Ryan Paulson said the city received a grant of approximately

AT THE LIBERTY:

"Dog Man"

February 21 – 25

THE TIMES

DAYTON — There's a new breed of hero in town. DreamWorks Animation, creators of the film franchises including Kung Fu Panda, Trolls, and How to Train Your Dragon, have adapted the New York Times bestselling series "Dog Man" by Dav Pilkey. When a police dog and an officer are injured on the job together, a life-saving surgery changes the course of history, and Dog Man is born. Half dog, half man, Dog Man is sworn to protect and serve as long as he isn't distracted by squirrels. He doggedly pursues his arch-nemesis and the feline supervillain, Petey the Cat. The rivalry between Dog Man and Petey is turned on its head by the arrival of an adorable kitten clone of Petey, Lil Petey. With humor, hijinks, and heart, Dog Man explores the power of love (and kittens) to bring foes, even the most hostile and hairy, together. The cast includes Pete Davidson, Stephen Root, Billy Boyd, Isla Fisher, Ricky Gervais, and Lil Rel Howery. "Dog Man" is rated PG for some action and rude humor, with a runtime of 94min.

The consensus of critics on "Rotten Tomatoes" is that "Dog Man" will delight kids while throwing their parents a bone and gave it a rating of 80%. The audience rates the movie a bit higher at 83%, stating that "it was entertaining the entire time, filled with emotion, and great for kids as well as adults."

Rehearsals have begun for the annual variety show, "Songs of the Elements," with performances on March 28 through 30. Tickets will go on sale soon.

The Liberty Theater announced its spring melodrama, "Peril on the Seas," will be directed by Wolf Harter. It is a dramedy set in the roaring '20s about a beautiful heiress, Merry Ann Sweet, who sets out for her first adventure as a young woman. Will she discover fun, friendship, or even romance on her journey?

However, storms are brewing on the HMS Majestic as a kidnapping plot masterminded by the vile and villainous Snively Swine unfolds. Will Willy Ketchum, the dedicated police sergeant, be able to stop Snively's dastardly plan? Or will the villain succeed in whisking away the hapless heiress?

The theater will hold an Info-Night at the Liberty Theater Annex on Wednesday, February 26, at 6 p.m. Auditions will be held on Friday, March 7, 6 p.m. – 9 p.m.; Saturday, March 8, 1 p.m. – 6 p.m.; and Sunday, March 9, 1 p.m. – 6 p.m.

The upcoming movie lineup includes "Dog Man, Feb. 21–25, and "Captain America: Brave New World," Feb. 28–Mar. 4.

Mark Lee Schuck

May 22, 1952 – February 13, 2025

It is with deep sorrow that we mourn the passing of Mark Lee Schuck, age 72. After a long battle with cancer, he went to be with his Lord on February 13, 2025, in Dayton, Washington.

Mark was born to Ted and Esther Schuck of Avon, Indiana, on May 22, 1952. He graduated with Avon High School's class of 1970, then earned his degree in fish biology at Colorado State University. While at CSU, Mark spotted a tall, dark-haired beauty across the cafeteria. Mark and Carolyn were married on June 16, 1973. Pursuing their careers in both Oregon and Washington, they finally settled in Dayton, Washington in 1984. In this wonderful community, they raised their two daughters. Mark was a devoted and attentive father and husband. He and Carolyn were involved in Young Life leadership and their local church. His beloved Carolyn passed away in 2012.

Mark dedicated 35 years of his career to the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife. As a natural mentor, leader, and speaker, he affected many positive changes in the lives of those with whom he worked. His ground-breaking research on the lower Snake River steelhead was widely respected and set the precedent for excellence in research.

Following retirement in 2013, Mark had more time to pursue his passions of fishing, hunting, and carpentry. In 2014, he married the second love of his life, Marlene Davis, and became part of the small Samish Island community in northwestern Washington. Life expanded to include grand parenting, gallivanting around the world, depleting the Padilla Bay crab population, and making sawdust with friends. In service to his community, he dedicated much of his time to helping others.

Mark is survived by his wife Marlene Davis Schuck; daughters Christine (Jason) Dillon of Madison, Miss., and Catherine (Evan) Pardini of Colville, Wash.; grandchildren Jared, Mark, and Christiana

Dillon, and Gabriel, Abigail, Genevieve, and Penelope Pardini; brother Michael (Elaine) Schuck; nephew Ben (Julie) Schuck and niece Kearson (Matt) Farishon; and many more extended family and friends whom he loved unconditionally.

Special thanks to the many who supported Mark through his cancer journey by offering prayers, encouragement, and medical expertise. The family encourages others to honor Mark's memory by showing the same spirit of love, humility, and giving to those around you. What he became for you, become for others. "Do nothing out of selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility consider others as more important than yourselves." Philippians 2:3

$250,000 to remedy rough street surfaces caused by the Otta Seal project.

The city planned a workshop to discuss the inter-local contract between Dayton and Columbia County for emergency services.

In the final public comment period, Theresa Eier reiterated her concern about the sheriff's department and its lack of checks and balances. She said their policy manual needs an overhaul.

The next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, March 11, 2025, at 6 p.m.

PORT OF COLUMBIA MEETING UPDATE

By Justin Jaech | THE TIMES

DAYTON — The Port of Columbia Commissioners held their regular meeting at 5 p.m. on February 12, 2025, at the port's conference room. Commissioners Seth Bryan, Johnny Watts, Mike Spring, and Executive Director Jennie Dickinson were present.

The commissioners handled a few administrative items, including approving minutes from past meetings and reviewing the monthly budget report. There were no new or amended leases to review. The commissioners reviewed and approved a sewer agreement with the City of Dayton, which allowed wastewater pipes to cross under and alongside the railroad.

The commissioners considered Resolution 2025-02 to authorize the director to apply for a USDA Rural Business Development Program grant for capital improvements to Blue Mountain Station building #2. The funds would cover improvements, including an HVAC system on the building leased by Cedar Rain, which will not renew its lease. A company that intends to produce gluten and gluten-free pasta has expressed interest in leasing the building.

Dickinson said the rail operator Columbia Rail had purchased material with grant funding to improve crossings and replace some ties. Some of the materials are being stored and visible along the track.

Dickinson said that the Economic Development Coordinator Jill Essency has resigned after serving 18 months to take a position with the City of Renton. Essency was replaced by Shane Laib, who previously worked with Inland Cellular in downtown Dayton.

The next meeting is on March 12, 2025.

A Day in the Life of an 80-year-old Skier

By Michele Smith | THE TIMES

DAYTON—When her alarm goes off at 5:45 a.m., Carol Anderson, 80, rises, washes her face, makes her bed, empties the dishwasher, and then calls for the Ski Bluewood daily report. She is going skiing!

Breakfast is first. Then she dresses in long johns, a ski turtleneck, and very tight ski socks, carefully working them over her feet so there are no wrinkles. Then she starts loading the car, first with her skis, poles, and a small gear bag to the car. Helmet and goggles go into the car next.

She puts hand warmers inside her ski boots, rolls her ski pants into one boot, and a storage bag and buckle fastener into the other. Time to pull her hair back, clean her glasses, and add Fog Defender to the lenses. She downs an Aleve, slips into a fleece jacket, and pulls her ski pants on.

She loads the car with the rest of the gear – the CDs, iPhone, snack, water bottle, fleece hat, and a baseball hat- in case the sun blocks her view on the drive up to the mountain. The last things to be packed are her ski coat and ski boots.

Then, she is off for the half-hour drive up the mountain. She carefully watches for deer “who tend to commit suicide” by standing alongside the road and jumping out in front of cars.

When she arrives at the lodge parking lot, she unloads the gear, and slips on her coat, helmet, and goggles. She struggles to carry her skis, poles, and boots up eighteen metal stairs to the lodge. At her age, she says this sometimes means making two trips.

She can avoid the stairs by trudging up an incline through the snow and working her way around to the back of the lodge.

“Usually, the stairs are easier,” she says. “If I’m lucky, someone will come along, probably thinking I look pathetic (I do look pathetic) and carry my skis for me.” Carol places her skis and poles on the crowded ski rack, taking the Velcro ski straps off and making sure they are secure.

She stores her helmet in a cubby and makes a bathroom stop, which means unzipping and unfastening all that clothing.

With that done, she removes her hiking boots, puts on the ski pants, zips the full-length side zippers, fastens the Velcro waist straps, and gets into her ski boots. Sometimes, she needs help clamping a buckle down.

Pinning her hair away from her face she secures an iPod to her jacket collar and pops in the earbuds. Getting into her coat, gloves, and helmet, she walks out the door on ski boot heels to retrieve her skis from the rack.

While standing on one leg, she kicks the snow off one boot and places it into a ski binding. Then, balancing on that ski, she scrapes snow off the other boot and pushes it down to snap into the second binding. She says sometimes it takes more than once to accomplish. All while standing on one leg and reaching behind to pull the legs of her pants up so they don’t get caught in the bindings.

She checks her watch. It is 9:15 a.m., and it’s time to make her way to the lift, where she is scooped onto a frost-covered, slippery lift chair. Riding to the top, she takes notice of the condition of the ski runs along the way.

She also thinks about various mishaps over the years and the wisdom of skiing at the age of eighty. Her thoughts always turn to the three men who shared her love of skiing and from whom she learned the most about it - fiancé Ted, husband Andy, and son Rob. Though they are gone now, she honors their memory every time she skis.

Finally, at the top, she hops off and is ready for action.

“I’m a little tentative at first,” she explains. “Then I trust my ‘miracle’ skis.”

Her professional-level skis use the latest design and materials, making it easier for her to continue skiing and improving her skills.

“My world really does seem to change once I move the skis,” she says. “It’s a feeling of complete freedom. When done correctly, it feels like I’m flying. Because I have music on, I also feel like I’m dancing.”

Dayton resident Carol Anderson is in her happy place on the mountain.

After ten or eleven exhilarating runs to the sound of ‘60s and ‘70s rock and roll, it is time to go home.

She returns to the car, dragging all her gear with her, and then drives home.

By the next morning, she is recharged and ready to do it all over again.

Why go through all that effort at her age?

“Because it is so darn much fun, and it makes me feel young again!” she quips. “I plan to keep on skiing as long as I can.”

Carol took lessons at Ski Bluewood, outside of Dayton, where she has done most of her skiing over the past forty-five years. She credits her instructors, friends, and family members for helping her become a skilled skier and for the improvements to ski equipment for her longevity.

Bluewood makes it easy for skiers to keep enjoying the sport with reduced ski-pass fees for seniors. This year, skiers between 65 and 69 can save $100 on an annual ski pass, and super seniors over 70 save $650 for a pass.

WIN ONE – LOSE ONE

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Last week, the Waitsburg Middle School girls basketball team played two close games. On Monday, February 10, the young Cardinals played Prescott at home on Kison Court and then traveled to Dayton on February 12.

“It was a pretty rough game against Prescott,” said Coach Karen Huwe. “Twenty-five fouls were called. There have not been that many total fouls in our last three games. But the girls stayed composed and had a good fourth quarter, scoring 10 points to secure the win.”

In the 16-14 win, Audrey Kiefel scored six points in the deciding fourth quarter. Kaitlyn Paul finished the game with four points, and Jaylynn Gleason, Laila Long, and Kayla Kuykendall each scored two points.

Kiefel rebounded six and Paul seven to lead the Cardinals, outperforming the Tigers in rebounds.

At Dayton, both teams struggled to score. Dayton bettered Waitsburg in the second quarter with a 13-5 lead at halftime. Waitsburg scored six points in the third to narrow the gap to 15-11; however, Dayton prevailed with a final score of 20-17.

The Cardinal scorers were Gleason, Mady Potter, and Kuykendall with four points each, Kiefel three, and Paul added two.

“The girls did better at eliminating multiple offensive rebounds,” said Coach Huwe. “Laila Long pulled down a season-high nine boards to lead the team in rebounding the Bulldogs. Defensively, we played more aggressively, with Kiefel getting five steals, Kuykendall four, and Long and Gleason having three steals each.”

The Lady Cardinals will play their last home game on Wednesday, February 19, against Rogers of College Place.

WW CHAMBER TO HOST COMMUNITY CHARRETTE ON 2025-2050 VISION FOR THE VALLEY

THE TIMES

WALLA WALLA — The Walla Walla Valley Chamber of Commerce is expanding its annual update luncheon by featuring the Community Charrette: “2025-2050 Vision for the Future of Our Walla Walla Valley.”

On March 5, the Courtyard by Marriott will host this collaborative planning session, inviting community members, local leaders, and elected officials to discuss the future of the Walla Walla Valley.

A charrette is a dynamic exchange of ideas between project stakeholders to generate actionable solutions. Attendees will move between roundtable discussions, including housing, childcare, infrastructure, tourism, and agribusiness.

Each table will be hosted by community decision-makers. Ideas generated during the event will be documented by table hosts and compiled into a comprehensive report to inform strategies for the valley’s growth and development.

In 2025, the chamber will continue to create opportunities for connection, innovation, and impact. This year’s chamber events will be a chance to bring the community closer, build a stronger foundation for the future, and remind all that collaboration is the heart of progress.

The doors open for the luncheon at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, March 5. The charrette will begin at noon. The Courtyard by Marriott is located at 550 W. Rose Street, Walla Walla.

HANKINS MOVES UP TO STATE WRESTLING

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Waitsburg High School junior Jared Hankins will make his first trip to a State Mat Classic XXXVI Wrestling Competition on February 22 in Tacoma. He will compete in the Boys 1B/2B 175 weight class with a 16-16 record and seeded seventh.

Hankins won his place at state at the District 6 State Qualifier Boys Wrestling Tournament on February 15 at Freeman High School in Rockford, Wash. As one of the top nine wrestlers in his weight class, Hankins earned the seventh seed by beating a wrestler from Selkirk by points and a teammate, Graycen Teal, by pin. Teal was just short of qualifying for state, placing tenth.

Cardinal Karissa Potts participated in the District 6 State Qualifier Girls Wrestling Tournament at Rogers High School in Spokane on February 15.

The regional competitions were the last this season for Hankins’ teammates Teal, Will Ahler, Dylan Gutierrez, and Karissa Potts.

Karen Huwe

Jarod Hankins flexed his muscles in a pre-season pose, now he will represent Waitsburg at the State Wrestling Competition.

A bunch of Walla Walla men have sort of taken the lead in running down this Bigfoot thing around here, but a woman is right up there with them, heading into the hills every chance she gets. Dar Glasgow Addington of Walla Walla uses a motorized vehicle to reach some of her Bigfoot prowling, but she is the only one around here who uses pack goats. That's right... the trained goat you own or rent to do your gear packing when you want to hike the woody trails but not be burdened by a pack on your back. The goat does it for you, and those who have turned to this animal say it's a lot better than a horse, llama, or whatever.

 February 20, 1975

We have been carried, by legislative and executive wishful thinking, down the primrose path to the promised land of uniformity – only we find it isn't heaven. The Days of Real Sport this year will lay approximately $1100 or more before the altar of the high priests of uniformity in the State Racing Commission. For some 60-plus years, the Waitsburg racing meet has been operating quite nicely on locally printed, hand-sold pari-mutuel tickets. Through an ingenious numbering system, all tickets were accounted for, and easy access to all information was there. But the State Racing Commission decreed that ALL tracks in the State of Washington must use pari-mutuel machines. So this year, the Days of Real Sport will have to pay DOUBLE what their tickets cost them in the past. In addition, ALL the money paid for the tickets will go out of the area in the pocket of the dude who rents the machines.

MY RECIPES Luke Chavez

Lemon Bars

While searching for dessert recipes it is easy to get lost in the seemingly endless options of new and trendy flavor combinations. Exotic ingredients and complicated techniques can be fun when you have the time, or the budget, to bake for a special occasion. However, sometimes it is worth revisiting the humble classics. Lemon bars are in this category of easy to make homey favorites that are always a crowd pleaser. With a delicate butter shortbread base topped with a sweet and lively lemon curd, it is easy to see why these lovely bars have become such an iconic American sweet treat.

Ingredients:

For the crust:

- 1 ¼ cups unbleached all-purpose flour
- ½ cup powdered sugar (plus more for dusting)
- ½ teaspoon fine salt
- 8 tablespoons unsalted butter, cut into 1-inch pieces

For the filling:

- 7 large egg yolks, plus 2 large eggs
- 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- ⅔ cup fresh lemon juice (4 to 5 lemons)
- ¼ cup finely grated lemon zest
- Pinch of salt
- 4 tablespoons unsalted butter, cut into 4 pieces
- 3 tablespoons heavy cream

Directions:

Lightly grease a 9-inch square baking pan. Cut two sheets of parchment paper, or foil, into 9 x 16-inch rectangles. Center one rectangle of parchment in pan and push into bottom and sides of pan. Then repeat with the other sheet of parchment perpendicular to the first, so that you have an overhang of paper on all four sides of the pan. Lightly grease the parchment paper.

First start the crust. In the bowl of a food processor, combine the flour, powdered sugar, and salt, then process briefly to evenly mix. Add the butter and process to blend, about 10 seconds. Next, process the mixture in 1-second pulses until it resembles a pale-yellow coarse meal. Don't over mix. Sprinkle the mixture into the prepared pan and press firmly with your fingers to create an even layer over the entire pan bottom. Place in the refrigerator to chill for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, adjust the oven rack to the middle position and pre-heat the oven to 350 degrees. After chilling, bake the crust until golden brown, about 20 minutes.

While the crust is baking, make the filling. In a nonreactive bowl, whisk together the yolks and whole eggs until mixed. Add the granulated sugar and whisk until just combined, about 5 seconds. Next, whisk in the lemon juice, zest, and pinch of salt. Transfer the mixture to a medium nonreactive saucepan and add the butter pieces. Cook over medium-low heat, stirring constantly, until the curd thickens to a sauce-like consistency and reaches 170 degrees with a thermometer, about 5 minutes. Working quickly, pour the curd through a fine-mesh strainer set over a clean nonreactive bowl. Whisk in the heavy cream. At this point the crust should be done; pour the curd into the warm crust immediately. Lightly tap pan to break any large bubbles.

Set pan in the hot oven and bake until curd sets, is shiny and opaque, about 10 to 15 minutes. The center 3 inches of the filling will still be slightly jiggly when shaken. Completely cool pan on a wire rack until room temperature, about 45 minutes to an hour then chill pan in the refrigerator for a couple of hours before cutting. Use the parchment handles to carefully remove the bars from the pan and transfer to a cutting board. Cut into 2 ¼ to 3-inch bars (16 or 9 bars respectively), wiping the knife clean between cuts. Dust the tops with powdered sugar.

Notes:

It is essential that you add the warm filling to the warm crust. Make sure you have all your ingredients ready and measured, so that you can make the filling while the crust is baking.

Bars must be completely cool before cutting. Serve chilled or at room temperature on a decorative platter, and store leftovers in an airtight container in the fridge.

Enjoy!
