Dona Stella coming to the homestead

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — The late Jim Hansen and his wife, Geraine, custom-harvested wheat and raised Black Angus on their family farm on the South Fork Coppei Creek from 1947 until the sale of the cropland in 2009. They harvested over 14,000 acres a summer for themselves and others in the area. Their enterprise employed 20 to 25 crew members each summer.

Daughter Cheryl returned to the family home in 2017 to take care of Geraine. Honoring her family's history, Hansen renovated the property to create Stella's Homestead, offering accommodations, trails, and an entertainment venue. Stella was an old mare that her father had used to haul hay for the other livestock. It is also the nickname Cheryl was given on a high school ski trip.

Hansen is bringing farming back to her family home, turning a .4-acre plot into a working vineyard. After rototilling the family orchard four years ago, she planted Riesling grapes. This will be the first year Hansen will harvest the grapes. Rob Woehr, one of the owners and winemakers at TruthTeller Winery, will process the grapes, and Sella will soon have her wine bottled.

It is not a quick process to see results from a new vineyard; it takes at least three years for the grapes to mature. Then, a producer must gather the county, federal, and state permits to sell wine, followed by approximately five months to process the grapes.

On Saturday, September 28, Hansen and friends gathered in the vineyard to harvest the grapes. After Woehr showed the group what to pick and what to discard, the crew of Paul and Lynn Mantz-Powers, Jim Cornelius, Jollie Welch, Scott Napier, and Hansen's niece Corrie began harvesting. Terry Hofer drove the trailer loaded with buckets of picked grapes to the bin.

The next day, Woehr started the process of turning the grapes into wine at TruthTeller Winery. There are five or six steps to transform the grapes into wine after they arrive at the winery. The process starts with sorting, pressing, and then letting the juice settle before racking. The juice will be inoculated with yeast, go through slow fermentation, checked for sugar content, settle some more, have cold stabilization, rack again, and be held until bottled.

By the end of January, if the permitting is complete, Hansen will label her new wine, Dona Stella, which means Madam Stella. Another nickname, Dona Stella, was what Hansen was called by her students in Goiania, Brazil, where she taught English from 1989 to 1991.

"I am proud of making this happen," said Stella. "Who would have thought a test plot would turn into a vineyard? It just takes money, time and work to continue the farming legacy."

Cardinals Soar Over the Bulldogs

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Waitsburg's football team beat the Dayton Bulldogs 54-22 at home on Friday, September 27. The win makes it three in a row for the Cardinals, who started strong, leading 46-8 at halftime.

Jarod Hankins had another great defensive game, sacking the Dayton quarterback three times and making 15 tackles. JJ Gleason played big on defense. He intercepted a pass and ran for a touchdown, deflected five passes, caused two fumbles, recovered a fumble, and made 13 tackles. Brenton Segraves and Tucker Hamilton each had 13 total tackles. Victor Whitmore and Koyen Fortune were each credited with a sack and nine tackles.

On offense, quarterback Isa Reyes had a career-high in rushing for 186 yards, scoring three touchdowns and two conversions. Fortune scored two touchdowns. Dayton couldn't stop Waitsburg's running game, which finished with 281 rushing yards.

Coach Kiefel was proud of how his boys played against Dayton, knowing many played against family and friends.

"I wish the Dayton kids well, but we cannot play differently than any other week. We are striving to meet our potential so when we step on the field, it is all business," said Kiefel.

He said the Bulldogs are well-coached and making progress. Bulldog quarterback Jordan McCowen, Denver Hutchens, and Byron Collier played hard.

"I am happy to be on the winning end of our match. Dayton will be tough for the next couple of years," said Kiefel.

Waitsburg has a 3-1 record, and Dayton dropped to 1-2 with the loss.

The Cardinals play at Tekoa-Rosalia on Friday, October 4, and the Bulldogs will play at Garfield-Palouse on Saturday, October 5.

COMMUNITY-WIDE DIAPER DRIVE SEPT. 29-OCT. 6

THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Touchet Valley parents and caregivers needing help obtaining diapers face significant barriers, including long drives to distribution centers and the need to provide personal information and proof of income. To help meet community needs, the Waitsburg Christian Church has started a small-scale diaper bank to complement its clothing ministry which has served hundreds of families facing emergencies and meeting everyday needs.

The church is asking the community for donations of diapers during a week-long drive from September 29 through Sunday, Oct. 6. Community members can donate disposable diapers sizes newborn through size 6, wipes, and other supplies to stock the diaper bank for the coming months.

Jillian Henze, leading the project, said donations of unopened diaper packs and supplies can be dropped off on the front steps at the Waitsburg Christian Church at 604 Main Street or call her at (425) 785-6731.

Diapers can be purchased on the church's Amazon wish list page at www.amazon.com/hz/wish-list/lr/G2R8JM7HPIIO?ref=wl_share, delivered directly to the diaper bank at the church. The church is a nonprofit organization, and donations are tax-deductible.

Once the diaper bank has been stocked, parents and caregivers can call Henze or the church at (509) 337-8898 to pick up diapers. The church does not require identification or income information. Families will receive about 70 diapers per month.

"We are hoping to collect 1,650 diapers by Oct. 6 to stock our diaper bank for the first month," said Henze. "We have collected about 500 diapers as of Oct. 1. We'll aim to keep about 1,650 diapers of all sizes on hand each month to serve a handful of families. We are starting small and will gauge the need through close inventory tracking."

The number of families and caregivers that will be helped depends on the supply. Please donate generously to provide monthly and intermittent distributions to families in need. For more information, email jillianhenze@gmail.com.

VOTE FOR KAMALA HARRIS

Letter to the Editor:

During Trump's presidency, the trade deficit grew to its highest level since 2008. His 2017 tax cuts incentivized corporations to offshore jobs by lowering the tax rates on foreign profits. "More than 300,000 jobs were lost to offshoring during Trump's presidency.(NYT.: The NAFTA Effect", 9/8/2024, Lyndon French)

Blaming Pfizer for his 2020 election loss, Trump urged his followers to use Hydroxychloroquine. According to the Journal of The American Medical Association, Hydroxychloroquine is not effective against COVID-19, and is associated with cardiac arrest.

In October 2021, 25 out of every 100,000 residents in predominantly Trump-voting counties died of COVID-19, approximately three times higher than the death rate in predominantly Biden-voting counties (7.8 per 100,000). (NYT 11/8/2021, US COVID Deaths Get Even Redder", David Leonhart)

At a rally in Wisconsin on 9/28/2024, Trump called Kamala Harris "mentally disabled and impaired," revealing his contempt for disabled people. According to the Centers for Disease Control, people with disabilities face health inequities due to discrimination, poverty and exclusion from education and employment. More than one in four (28.7 percent) adults in America have some type of disability.

Trump's lies cost jobs and lives. Please vote for Kamala Harris.

MAYBERRY A STRONG LEADER

Dear Editor,

Re-Elect Jenny Mayberry for Walla Walla County Commissioner. When you vote for Jenny Mayberry, you are voting for someone who shows up! Her commitment to this county is evident in everything she does. Since taking office she has been a strong advocate for the people. Her passion shows whether she is scrubbing graffiti off a building, working with our local law enforcement and fire dept, or fundraising for local organizations and veterans she shows up! The passion, strength, integrity, and courage Jenny Mayberry shows is a testimony of her commitment to this county. We have enough people sitting at the table. We need a leader who will continue to show up and support the people of Walla Walla County. Jenny Mayberry has my vote!

Paula Jorstad
Walla Walla, Wash.

SUPPORT FOR MAYBERRY

The upcoming general election is very important for Walla Walla County residences. What do we stand for and what are we willing to do about? Faith and Quality of life for family and friends is something I think about daily. Can we have quality of life without safety and security? The answer is no.

Is safety and security possible in our valley without strong community leadership and a diverse law enforcement component? Not likely!

Fentanyl and other illicit drugs continue to plague our society. Walla Walla County is no exception. Eighty-five percent of all crime is related to illegal narcotics. Drug use has also contributed to the explosion of many of the mental health issues in our county.

I'm voting to re-elect Jenny Mayberry for Walla Walla County Commissioner because she understands our community issues and she is a strong supporter of public safety. She has four years' experience dealing with our county's challenges and Jenny Mayberry is the "hometown candidate". Most importantly, Jenny will continue to work hard for the quality of life that we all enjoy in our beautiful valley!

Dallas Dickinson

May 9, 1951 — August 25, 2024

Dayton resident Dallas Dickinson, 73, died August 25, 2024, at Harborview Medical Center in Seattle, WA from complications of pneumonia. Her husband and daughters were with her.

Born on May 9, 1951, in Dayton to Benton L and Susan E (Harris) Dickinson, Dallas spent her early years in Starbuck, WA, attending school there and spending time with her Grandma Jennie Dickinson Zink who lived nearby. Starting in 1961, Dallas spent two school years in Tucson, Arizona with her mother and sisters Zena and Lois to give Dallas a chance to outgrow her asthma. Her father, Ben, would come down in the winter to be with his family, and Dallas's health did improve. The family lived on the Eckler Mountain property during the summer of 1963. It was a memorable time for everyone. Soon thereafter, the family moved to Dayton. Dallas's first day of school in Dayton found her seated behind an unruly kid named Mike McQuary. She endured that, and attended middle and high school, excelling, and graduated in 1969. By that time, the Dickinson family had moved again to a house 18 miles north of Dayton, when the Bar Z Ranch was born. In 1967 Ben took over the Jackson family land on the Pataha and farmed there until his death in 1988.

After high school, Dallas attended Eastern Washington University. She graduated with a degree in journalism. One of the highlights of her college years was a summer backpacking trip in Europe with a friend, Emily Noland. Dallas loved to travel and had adventures the rest of her life.

Dallas and Mike McQuary married in Spokane on February 25, 1977. They lived there for a year before moving to Dayton. Mike then farmed with his father-in-law Ben for 10 years, until Ben's death. Mike ran the farm for 10 more years after that. Mike and Dallas shared a love for each other, and of books, music, faith, and family. Their home has been a gathering place for family and friends for years – you always knew you would have a warm welcome, good conversation, and maybe some music!

Dallas and Mike welcomed Robin to the world on June 2, 1981; while living in Baileysburg. Clara joined the family on September 7, 1985. Soon after, they decided to move to the ranch on the Pataha to be close to Grandpa Ben and Nonnie and ranch work.

Dallas loved words and writing. One of her early jobs was as an editor for a local manuscript company, ghost writing for authors. She belonged to a local Scrabble group that met weekly and enjoyed playing word games every day. Dallas also served as a letter carrier with the Poster Service in Dayton and worked at McQuary's grocery. Later, she found her likely true calling. She became a secretary at the Dayton School District, a job she held for 23 years. Part of her contribution was writing grant applications and school newsletters. She also was a "nurse" and disciplinarian. She greeted everyone with a smile and a friendly face and was loved by both the kids and staff. Grown kids fondly remember her to this day.

Dallas was raised with an appreciation for faith, hard work, community, and love of history. She was a lifetime member of the First Congregational Church, serving as everything from clerk to treasurer to moderator on the Church Council. Singing in the choir was one of her joys in life. She was active in local groups including the Skyline Junior Club and the Blue Mountain Heritage Society. She volunteered as a docent at both BMHS museums. She also gathered historical information on pioneer families and served as board treasurer. In her free time from all that, she loved her flowers and flowering plants. She spent hours nurturing them and tending to them. She loved roses and always had a large bedful.

MUDDY WOLF CREATIVE DANCE

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Ashley Hamilton wanted to give the kids in our three small communities something safe, fun, and active to do. She believes active children are happy children, so she used her cheer and dance experience to start Muddy Wolf Creative Dance in June 2024.

Hamilton got her business license, insurance, and a youth fitness certification to make her dream a reality. She chose Muddy Wolf to honor her Native American heritage and family memories in the Blue Mountains. She added "creative" as her dancers will help create each routine so they know they can create beautiful things.

The young dancers practice at the Prescott Lions Club Hall on Thursdays and Fridays from 4 p.m. – 6 p.m. Hamilton said Lions Club members always ensure the hall is ready and have been truly wonderful.

The group's first performance was at halftime of the Waitsburg-Dayton football game on Friday, September 27. They will dance a Halloween routine at the Waitsburg Town Hall during the Halloween Curiosity Craft Bazaar on October 19. Hamilton plans to choreograph a Christmas performance and participate in the holiday parades. She would like to coordinate with Waitsburg Parks & Rec on events throughout the year. Hamilton welcomes any third through eighth-grade students to join Muddy Wolf Creative Dance. If the wolf is calling, contact Hamilton at tucker.wayne10@gmail.com.

"I am very happy to be able to provide this service to our communities and cannot wait to make more lasting memories with our families," she added.

Dallas Dickinson
May 9, 1951 – August 25, 2024

Even more important to her were her daughters and grandchildren, who she adored. In the throes of her worst health issues in the past few years, she would beam when any of them dropped by to see her.

She and her sisters began exploring their family heritage in later years, and traveled to Illinois, New York, Missouri and Oklahoma following in the footsteps of their ancestors. After battling cancer in 2023, Dallas was able to travel with her two sisters and cousin Kari to the Netherlands, Belgium, Germany, and Denmark to visit the sites her father had stayed at during World War II. They also visited the birthplace of their great grandparents who emigrated to the US from Denmark and settled in Dayton. This trip was a long and arduous one for Dallas. It was a true testament to her strength, resilience and adventurous nature. She wouldn't have missed it for anything. Her spirit is now with those whose footsteps she followed.

Surviving family includes her husband of 47 years, Mike McQuary of Dayton; daughter Robin McQuary-Billow and husband Chris of Dayton; grandchildren Charlotte and Finnegan Billow of Dayton; daughter Clara Dickinson-McQuary of Walla Walla; raising twin boys Darius and Caspian with their father Marquell Fowler.

She is also survived by her sister Lois Vankat (Ray) of Tacoma; Jennie Dickinson (Jay Ball) of Dayton; Nieces and nephews Abbie Broughton Marsh of Phoenix, AZ; Alexandra Blood Broughton (Ellery) of Moscow, ID; Ben Broughton (Jessica) of Lacey, WA; John Vankat (Diane) of Omaha, NE; Josilyn Armstrong (Austin) of Portland, OR; Daniel Harrington (Kahla) of Dayton, WA; Jayson Ball of Boulder, CO; Heather White (Hayden) of Walla Walla, WA; cousin Wynn Schell of Oroville, WA, and cousin Kari Pugh Hansen of Spokane, WA and numerous Harris cousins and precious great nieces and nephews she adored.

She was preceded in death by her parents; a sister and brother-in-law, Zena and Bill Broughton; a cousin, Joe Schell, and a daughter, Emily Jo Dickinson-McQuary.

A memorial service will be held at the Dayton First Congregational Church on October 12th at 11:00am followed by a lunch reception. Memorial contributions may be made to the Dayton First Congregational Church (214 S. 3rd St. Dayton, WA), the Ben Dickinson Scholarship Fund (c/o Bar Z Ranch, Inc, 252 N. Touchet Road, Dayton WA), or the Blue Mountain Heritage Society (PO Box 163, Dayton, WA).

LIONS CLUB ANNUAL SALMON FEED

By Karen Huwe | THE TIMES

WAITSBURG — Lions Club President Connor Talbott and Secretary Ross Hamann received dozens of compliments and positive feedback on this year's salmon feed. Many at the event said it was the best salmon they had ever eaten.

The Lions Club hosted the annual salmon feed on September 21 at the Don Thomas building at the Waitsburg fairgrounds. Over 75 volunteers handled the details that made the event such a success, serving about 700 hungry folks.

"The club will clear approximately $15,000 from the generous, caring, and hungry people from our valley, of which 100% goes back to the community. The funds support everything from providing the less fortunate with eye exams and eyeglasses to helping form a new Boy Scout Troop, plus so much more," said Hamann.

"Big tip of the hat to the crew for making this a successful event," said Talbott.

Talbott said nine members of a Lions Club from Merced, California, were at this year's salmon feed. The group was impressed with the operation and how well attended the event was for being in such a rural area.

Talbott said an additional $1,000 was raised from a raffle. The first-place winner received $150, the second-place winner received four tickets to next year's rib feed, and the third-place winner received a $100 gift certificate from any restaurant in Waitsburg.

Palouse Outdoors: The Majesty of Mountaintop Grouse Hunting

By Brad Trumbo | THE TIMES

Blue Mountain ruffed grouse hunting is hard on an old dog. Thick covers and fire-scarred timbers scattered and stacked like match sticks are challenging for me, let alone two elder setters that stand 18 inches high at the chest. Nevertheless, we find ourselves in the mountaintop covers every September, welcoming the upland bird season with the ruffed grouse opener, enjoying camp overlooking the Dayton area, and the remarkable sunsets that boast a palette from peach to lavender.

Timbered edges of grassy and shrubby meadows are punctuated with crimson ninebark, snowberry, and rose hips. The elderberries cling to a hint of lime-green, accented by lavender berry clusters not quite ripe for the picking. The meadows transition into timber and thickening north-facing slopes sprouting whippy Scouler's willow, spindly buff larch that shed needles like snowflakes when bumped. The adolescent firs maintain their stately emerald hue, having none of that silly deciduousness. The forest floor along this transition is a carpet of forbs and grasses, a cache of grouse food, and cover easy enough for "old dog bones" to hunt with little consequence.

Finn and Yuba traversed such a transition zone, weaving among the shrubbery with their vests zipping through the stems. Twigs crunched beneath my feet as I carefully stepped through and over the small trees. Sunlight streamed through the forest canopy, illuminating the litterfall and forbs like stepping stones. The morning was pristine, the habitat was prime, and anticipation ran high.

Ruffs rarely sit for a pointing dog, in my experience. Therefore, I hunt grouse by sound mostly, listening for those pounding wings and trying frantically to locate the bird. When flushing into the open, their wingbeats are quick, vibratory, and palpable against the eardrum, like the "whopping" of a chopper flying overhead. An hour of pushing cover moved not a single bird, so I called the hunt and staged a photo with the aging setters to commemorate another season in grouse camp.

Savvy critters recognize vulnerability, and mountaintop ruffs seem to recognize the camera as one of mine. While capturing a few fine memories of the girls and a beautiful 1951 Dumoulin side-by-side 16-gauge received from a good friend, a ruff blew its cover less than 20 yards behind us. The flush was unmistakable; no visual identification required. Spinning on my heels, I scanned the trees for a football-shaped figure sitting on a nearby limb, but the bird knew better than to show itself.

"I bet they've got another 10 minutes left in them," I thought, releasing the duo to pursue the flush still echoing in my mind.

The girls again vanished into the cover to find that we had inadvertently located a small brood. Several more flushes came and went in short order with no visual evidence of a bird, not even a flash or a single father floating softly to the ground. One bird was close enough to kick. Its primary flight feathers slapped against branches, yet the Scouler's willow was so dense that it, too, sailed off into the timber without moving a twig. I could only imagine the low and canting flight path as it glided away, triumphant. No birds for us, but is grouse hunting truly about killing birds?

A five-grouse day is the best I've experienced on the mountaintop, and it has only happened twice. The birds are wherever you find them. Creek bottoms often provide more predictable hunting and bird contact. Additionally, ruffs move around in their home range, which encompasses up to 100 acres depending upon the season and brood rearing.

I've cataloged weather patterns, brooding conditions, fall food abundance, and time of day in the grouse covers for over a decade. The only weak correlation I can draw for consistently finding birds is overall bird abundance. I might see a few birds up high if the grouse had a good hatch and brood year. Otherwise, finding grouse on the mountaintop is a crapshoot. One clear correlation is the number of birds in the bag compared to the number of flushes in a given season. Because ruffs favor thick cover and are masterful escape artists, fewer than eight bird contacts in a season leaves me little shooting opportunity. But it's not

The evening view in grouse camp.

Brad Trumbo

Finn and Yuba sitting for an obligatory annual photo just a moment before a grouse flushed behind us birds that call us back to the mountaintop.

Grouse camp is about the early and late golden hours, the long shadows stretching across the ridgetops, and the chorus of warblers, chickadees, and nuthatches flocking into the ponderosas and meadow grasses to feed at dusk. There are vast views from the open ridges and the dramatic terrain where the earth seems to have fallen away. Chartreuse lichens punctuate the twisted, leaden skeletal limbs of fire-tortured ponderosas, and the sharp aroma of pine pitch on the air. The rare and piercing elk bugle that echoes through the canyons at daybreak and the raucous squawking of Clark's nutcrackers as the campfire burns down.

Am I rationalizing my average bag of one grouse per year? Perhaps. But I know where to find birds, and numbers equate to birds in the vest. Still, I choose this area year after year for the tradition and scenery over all else, driven by visions of the first gray-phase ruffed grouse I had ever seen, diving off the mountainside and sailing deep into the canyon below. That moment educated this easterner on the fact that grouse have color phases and behave like chukar in the right circumstances. A scene that replays through memory as the sun sinks, the nutcrackers cry, and a setter frolics with grasshoppers around the campfire.

MIDDLE SCHOOL FOOTBALL BEATS TEKOA-ROSALIA

WAITSBURG — The Waitsburg Middle School boys' football team traveled to Rosalia on Thursday, September 26, to play Tekoa-Rosalia. The Cardinals enjoyed the ride home after winning 48-25.

Waitsburg led 27-25 at halftime. The coaches made some defensive adjustments during halftime, and the boys completely shut down the Tekoa-Rosalia offense in the second half.

Quarterback Liam Kiefel suffered a back injury midway through the third quarter. Jake Lynch filled the position and got his first-ever game-time passing yards.

"The boys went out and played their hearts out. When these boys step on the field, they mean business and give it their all," said Coach Jared Wheat. "This group of young men amazes me every week. Coaching this group is one of my favorite things I've ever had the privilege of doing."

The Cardinals will play Liberty Christian in Waitsburg on Thursday, October 3, at 4:30 p.m.

WAITSBURG MS VOLLEYBALL BEATS ROGERS

Waitsburg's two middle school volleyball teams won matches against Rogers Adventist School on Wednesday, September 25, in Waitsburg. Waitsburg beat Rogers at Rogers in College Place on Monday, September 30.

In Waitsburg, the junior varsity team won three sets: 25-20, 25-18, and 15-12. The middle school varsity also won three sets: 25-19, 25-12, and 15-8.

Coach Savannah Castillo said she could not be prouder of the girls' determination. "They played their hearts out."

At Rogers, the junior varsity team won two out of the three sets. They lost the first set 21-25 but prevailed in sets two and three, winning 25-20 and 15-12. The varsity team won the first set 25-10, lost the second 14-25, and won a close third set 16-14.

"Both teams walked away with a win tonight. They struggled with communicating, but we had some great serves," said Castillo.

Castillo highlighted sixth grader Jaylynn Gleason, seventh grader Kaitlyn Paul, and eighth graders Joslyn Nodine and Olivia Kiefel as having some awesome serving.

The girls take on Desales in volleyball action on Kison Court on Wednesday, October 2, at 4 p.m.

Teeny McMunn

Glazed Lemon Zucchini Bread

I received this recipe from Heather Hiebert, one of the now-retired owners of the well-known Patit Creek Restaurant. In conversation she mentioned she had this great zucchini bread recipe. I asked to please share it with us

This recipe calls for cake flour. I don't usually buy it unless I know I am going to use all of it. I have shared the substitution and have used it as well with success. Here it is again: Take one cup of all-purpose flour, spooned and leveled. Remove two tablespoons, and then add two tablespoons of cornstarch to the all-purpose flour. Sift together before using.

I know I will make this for gift-giving for the holidays, so I best get it done while zucchini is available.

Heather noted at the bottom of her recipe that she doubles it and it makes three loaves. She also adds two tablespoons of poppy seeds.

Ingredients:

- 2 cups cake flour
- ½ cup canola oil
- ½ tsp salt
- 1 1/3 cups sugar
- 2 tsp baking powder
- 2 Tbsp lemon juice
- 2 eggs
- zest of 1 lemon
- ½ cup buttermilk
- 1 cup grated zucchini

Glaze ingredients:

- 1 cup powdered sugar
- 2 Tbsp lemon juice
- 1 Tbsp milk

Directions

Mix flour, salt, and baking powder in a medium bowl and set aside. In a large bowl, beat the eggs. Then add the oil and sugar until well blended. Add lemon juice, buttermilk, lemon zest to the mixture and blend them all together.

Fold in the zucchini until it is well mixed.

Add the dry mixture to the wet mixture and blend all together until well combined. Pour batter into a greased 9 x 5 loaf pan.

Bake at 350 degrees for 40-45 minutes. While still warm, make glaze and spoon over the bread. Let the glaze set up before cutting and serving.

This recipe was first published in The Times on September 27, 2018.

Heather Hiebert co-owned the highly missed, and well-remembered Patit Creek Restaurant in Dayton, Washington. It was listed in "Northwest Best Places" in 2013 as "the only 4-Star French restaurant east of the Cascades, its reputation for fine food seems incongruent with the humble green cottage beside the highway but reservations are a must."

Hiebert was kind enough to share this recipe with Teeny McMunn in 2018 and "The Times" is happy to share it with readers again this week.

The restaurant's paneled interior was decorated with black and white photos of silver screen stars including Bette Davis.
